

EVOLUTIONARY MUSIC COOPERATIVE

A New Co-operative Paradigm for Conscious Music

Evolutionary Music Co-Operative or EvMC is a small, startup, non-profit music co-operative that was incorporated in 2017. Based in the city of Toronto and inspired by both Motown and a co-operative business model, EvMC seeks to change the current paradigm that exists in the music industry. This present model is based heavily on competition between artists and thereby creates an unfair system where those who don't have the resources do not succeed in expressing their art. EvMC wants to change that paradigm into a new one that is based on cooperation, collaboration, consciousness, and equality.

EvMC's mission through its co-operative business model is to create, develop, and publish music that mutually benefits all parties involved in the creation of music regardless of genre, generation, and culture. EvMC hopes that through this model all artists and creators can make a sustainable living from their creative works and it is through this model, everyone has a share in the ownership and success in the co-operative.

EvMC's vision is to help artists in marginalized groups, those who are considered minorities in the city of Toronto, and those in low-income areas gain access to resources, guidance, and services that would help them express their art and further their dreams. Through EvMC's various membership options which vary depending on the artist, the funding would help support a variety of creative services offered through EvMC such as paid studio time, marketing, performances, and many other creative services offered through membership with EvMC.

Like many other small and non-profit organizations particularly in the arts, the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic has negatively affected EvMC and its operations, because of this EvMC is looking to members of the community for support. EvMC is asking for $955,400 to help support the initiative which will cover a variety of operational costs as listed on page four of this document. Through your support, EvMC can move into 2022 ready to reshape the music industry and create a better future for artists everywhere. By supporting EvMC you are supporting the creation of inspiring and mindful music, but also music that is also original and innovative. EvMC will provide updates on how your contribution has impacted us and supported artists in the creation of their art.
